The Brandon Daily Mail.
THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1901.

This organ appears to be greatly excited over the question of who will be the leader of the Conservative party. We would ask our contemporary not to be so impatient. The Conservatives are well able to look after their own affairs, and will in good time show who is to be their leader. In the meantime the Sun can console itself with the reflection that it will have to hide a wee.

It is now known that the C. P. R. Co. have made such arrangements as will place them in a satisfactory position financially, and they are prepared to go on with their work during the coming summer with greater vigor than before. It is well known that the amount of road completed in 1892 was almost marvellous, and showed a determination on the part of the company to leave nothing undone to speedily open up and develop the rich Northwest. The coming summer will probably see the building of branch lines being entered into, and perhaps it is not too much to expect that the showing of the present year will be even greater than that of last.

Hardly had the last election been placed on Mr. Wilson's political grave when the organ comes out with the question of how Mr. Woodworth will vote and whom he will support. The organ may rest assured that Mr. Woodworth will fulfill all pledges and support all measures which will be for the benefit of the Province. There is no necessity for the Sun reminding him of his pledges, for he is not inclined to repudiate any pledge made, so the badly beaten journal has only to content itself with patience, and as time rolls on all will be well, and Mr. Woodworth will be found representing us faithfully in the House.

THE Conservatives of this district deserve the thanks of the party all over the Province for the manner in which they worked, and for the success which attended their efforts. Without allowing anything to arise which might destroy the harmony which existed they put their shoulder to the wheel and untiringly, solidly, and without an uncertain sound pushed on to victory. That they worked earnestly, honestly, faithfully, hard and untiring is shown by the fact that their candidate is elected by a majority of about 175. They have only to remain united, go squarely into the contest, conduct it as honestly as the present one has been carried on, and their reward will always be victory.

THE Sun says: "It is a curious, curious, that a smaller vote than was expected was polled in the country districts." This is true in every sense of the word so far as Mr. Sifton is concerned, but the explanation is that Mr. Woodworth received the votes. Only a few days ago the Sun stated that a fine day would drive the last nail in Mr. Woodworth's coffin. The fine day came, but alas the nail was driven the wrong way, and another of the predictions of the organ went to the wall and shows that they are generally further out in their guessing than Vennor. In fact the organ appears to be gaining notoriety for making statements and prophecies which are never fulfilled. It had better go out of the business and own up that its knowledge of Manitoba is altogether too limited.

FROM the latest despatches we learn it is rumored that Sir Garnet Wolsey will be the probable successor of the Marquis of Lorne as Governor-General of Canada. Our present governor has made himself very popular with the people, and many will regret when his term of office expires, but should it so happen that the brave and successful Wolsey should take his place it will be hailed with satisfaction to all. An appointment which would give more satisfaction could scarcely be made, for the name of the fighting general, from his heroic and conduct, has become a household word all over the Dominion. His career as a General has been one of marked success, crowding thick and fast, one upon the other. From our own province to far off Africa, he has upheld the British arms and honor, and has showed skill and tactics, which few can lay claim to possess. He would come to us flushed with victories in recent campaigns, and would be received with open arms, and our present representative would have a very worthy successor, and one that would no doubt fill the position with credit to himself and the Dominion.

Beyond the election on all sides and at all times the Reformers kept up the cry of monopoly. The country was going to be ruined. The iron hand was already at the throat of the farmers and the vampire was surely sucking their life-blood. The C. P. R., backed by the Government, was diving into their pockets and robbing them of their hard earned coin. They were being crushed and hampered, and for all time to come this state of things would continue. A Reform campaign speech, or essay, abounded with such statements, and to one not acquainted with the tactics of the opposition the matter was made to appear as though there was something in it. But now that the elections are over what do we find? Only one rural constituency voted so as to return one of the croaking patrons of ruin. This must be a very nameless pull for the party to swallow, but it is nevertheless true, and shows that the discontent which was harped upon so much and so loud existed only in the minds of those who were determined to destroy the peace and harmony of our fair province, and raised turmoil and dissatisfaction among those who have made it their home. That such an attempt has failed is a lesson which only what could have been expected, for men are apt to pause before being led by every false alarm which may be raised in order to assist a party into power. The action of the farmers in the present contest shows that they have the utmost confidence in the government in power—the government which has already done so much for them, and will in due time do more. The yeomen of the Province know full well that railroads will be built, and ways provided for the shipment of their grain, but they are also aware that all this cannot be done in a day, and refuse to be the tools of any irresponsible persons and alarmists who may wish to get into power. Without doubt they have acted wisely and have by their action showed that they are not in accord with speculators and others who have not the interests of the Province at heart.

Clipped from Exchanges.

On Wednesday evening as Mr. Griffith and Mr. Schofield were returning from Rapid City to Minneapolis, they discovered a man lying by the trail strangled with the cord. The two gentlemen applied some liberalities to the frozen parts, and after vigorously rubbing succeeded in restoring him to consciousness. He was soon placed in the cutter, and as rapidly as the horse could travel, a distance of five miles was soon driven, when the residence of Mr. D. Campbell was reached. Here proper restoratives were used, and the sufferer gradually recovered from the terrible effects of his exposure. He informed the persons who found him that his name was Robert D. Lee, that his horses had run away, and he had fallen out of his rig, and was so overcome by the cold that he could not assist himself. His escape from death is due to the timely arrival of Messrs. Griffith and Schofield.

A fire broke out in the station house at Keewatin on Monday about 12 o'clock. The origin of the fire is not definitely known, but is attributed to a defective floor. The inmates of the building, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, Mr. Young and Mr. McEvoy lost all their money and personal effects. All the railway books and papers were completely destroyed. Mrs. Simpson had her face and arm severely burned, and her little boy escaped with a bad scorching. About $500 in cash was burned. The fire only lasted some twenty minutes.

David Grant was charged at the police court, on Sunday, with threatening to kill J. B. Neil. Grant is foreman over a gang of men employed in cutting wood for the Portage, Westbourne & Northwestern Railway Company, near High Bluff, and Neil is one of the men working under Grant. Last Friday morning the two men got into an altercation about some trifling thing which had gone wrong about the camp. Hot words ensued, and Grant threatened to kill his antagonist by hanging him. Shortly afterwards Grant started for the Portage, saying that he was going to buy a rope with which to hang Neil. Neil fearing that Grant would carry out his threat immediately took the train and came to the Portage also. On arriving there he took out a warrant and had Grant arrested, and he appeared at the police court the next day charged as above stated. The magistrate, after hearing the evidence, dismissed him with costs, and binding him over to keep the peace for one year in two securities of $150 each, and himself in the sum of $250.

Mr. W. H. Grassie, agent for Ogilvie & Co., reports that he has purchased up to date at Emerson 45,000 bushels of wheat.

On Thursday night some six loaded cars were badly damaged at Emerson station, owing to the carelessness in shunting. Several of the employees were examined as to the party to blame next morning. It looks as if some situations will be vacant.

General Manager Van Horn, Mr. Egan and Engineer Barclay, of the C. P. R., in company with Mayor Tennant and Councillor Tate, visited the location of the West Lynne station grounds and the site of the bridge crossing. Arrangements proved satisfactory to the C. P. R. Co. and to the town. The town got what they ask in the location of the station grounds and the bridge site on Morris Street, which is also decided upon, is more favorable terms to West Lynne than what was expected.

IN THE TOILS.

The arrest of an Alleged Swindler - A Scrap of His History.

Some time ago the police here received information to look out for a man named Reginald Brillion, who was wanted by two United Police on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences at Regina. It appears that Brillion and a couple of others formed a syndicate and purchased some property in the vicinity of Regina. Brillion had the handling of the property, and he eventually sold it, but instead of dividing with his partners, he quietly pocketed the whole proceeds and skipped out. As we have stated the police here were warned, but having no idea as to who Brillion was or what he was like, they were unable to capture him. However, Constable O'Keefe, of Rat Portage, happened to be in town, and informed Inspector McGowan of the fact that he knew Brillion by sight, whereupon the two officers set up a job whereby the culprit was lured into the Russell House, where Sergeant Warden, of the Mounted Police, took him into custody, and subsequently handed him over to the city police. He was conveyed to the Police Station, and shortly afterwards transferred to the Provincial Jail. Brillion, if all the reports concerning him were true, has a bad record. He is an ex-convicted felon, having joined the force in Montreal some years ago. While stationed at Battleford he was convicted of theft, and served out a nine month's sentence in a guard-room, after which he was dismissed from the force as a bad character. While in at Battleford he managed to take off his hand-cuffs and shackles regularly every evening, getting out on again in the morning, until one night the police twigged his little game and stopped it. After his dismissal from the force Brillion next turned up on section B, where he was fined five times for selling whiskey. On one of the occasions, while locked up in the jail at Eagle Lake in default of a fine of $200 and costs, he put his hand through the small wicket in his cell door and picked the Yale lock with which it was fastened. Then he opened the door and quietly departed. He was re-arrested at Eagle Lake by Constable Hugh McKenna, and rather than go back to jail he paid his fine. He was again arrested at Rat Portage on a charge of whiskey selling, but escaped from the lock-up there, only to be again arrested and sent to Winnipeg jail, from which institution his counsel succeeded in having him released on a writ of habeas corpus. A month ago he again fell into the hands of the law for gambling and selling liquor, and locked over another $200 and costs. It is likely now that he will be afforded an opportunity of pausing in his mad career.

LESSONS IN NATURE.

How the sons of the Prince of Wales Have Been Taught.

From the London Telegraph. Not never could the youth of Prince- more profitably spent than in travel- far into the world and viewing the wonders and beauties which clothe its surface. There is no other way of cultivating the spirit of cosmopolitanism which the progress of society makes every day a more imperative condition of great careers or exalted stations. One lance at an ebony savage, magnificent feathers and a petticoat of eccentric fashions, is a larger social revelation than is contained in many books. There is much fine writing about, notably of what is called the picturesque school, but no combination of all that is eloquent, melodious and suggestive in words can equal, as a sketch of a scene, the description which that same savage presents upon the eye, no matter how fugitive may be the glance. The immense range of education the Prince- have received by their voyage around the world cannot be realized. They have viewed the performance of life on a stage whose extent is the surface of the globe. Humanity has acted its manifold parts before them in all the countless arrays by which vanity or tradition forces it to clothe itself, and the scenery of the vast domain has been the shores, the cities, the forests, islands and mountains of the earth. The play has taken many months to act; but the fall of the curtain has left a thousand inspirations, and the two august spectators have brought away with them a wisdom that should make the knowledge of many an old man but a puerile toy in comparison. First and foremost they know the sea as sailor men; they have beheld it in all its moods, from the deep and breathless calm, made ghastly by the icy beams of the high moon shining down upon the radiant surface, whose silence nothing breaks but the rending stars of their war ship, to the raging sea, swelling up in mountains of foaming water under the mad pouring of the tempest; they have seen its angry, girdle belted by the delicate pink of distant islands, or its gray horizon dark with the bones of swart and beeting cliffs; they have watched its ash-blown billows breaking into the brilliancy of snow against the crystalline walls of icebergs, or they have hung amid its mystery of tonal shadows, and tumbled with something of wonder upon the weird configuration of blue and green firs, breaking in forms of trees and shrubs, or in serpentine shapes from the sides of their man-of-war as the soundless swell rolled up out of the straight horizon, and made the metal hull lean to the tune of the mighty pulsing. And though this be but one chapter of the great volume they have perused, assuredly it is not the least embellishing in its suggestions, nor lacking in that majesty of tuition by which the spirit is lifted up and made large by communion with the beneficent aspects of nature.

COMMERCIAL.

But slight changes in prices have occurred since our last report. In wheat and oats a slight increase is noticeable, but other products remain unchanged, the amount of grain being brought in is as large as could be expected when the cold weather and election excitement is taken into consideration. It is probable that there is a greater surplus now.
